

Homeless People in San Francisco

October 10, 2018

Here is what I found on the 300 block of Hyde Street when I visited there today

A new public toilet on the corner and a plant shop on Hyde Street

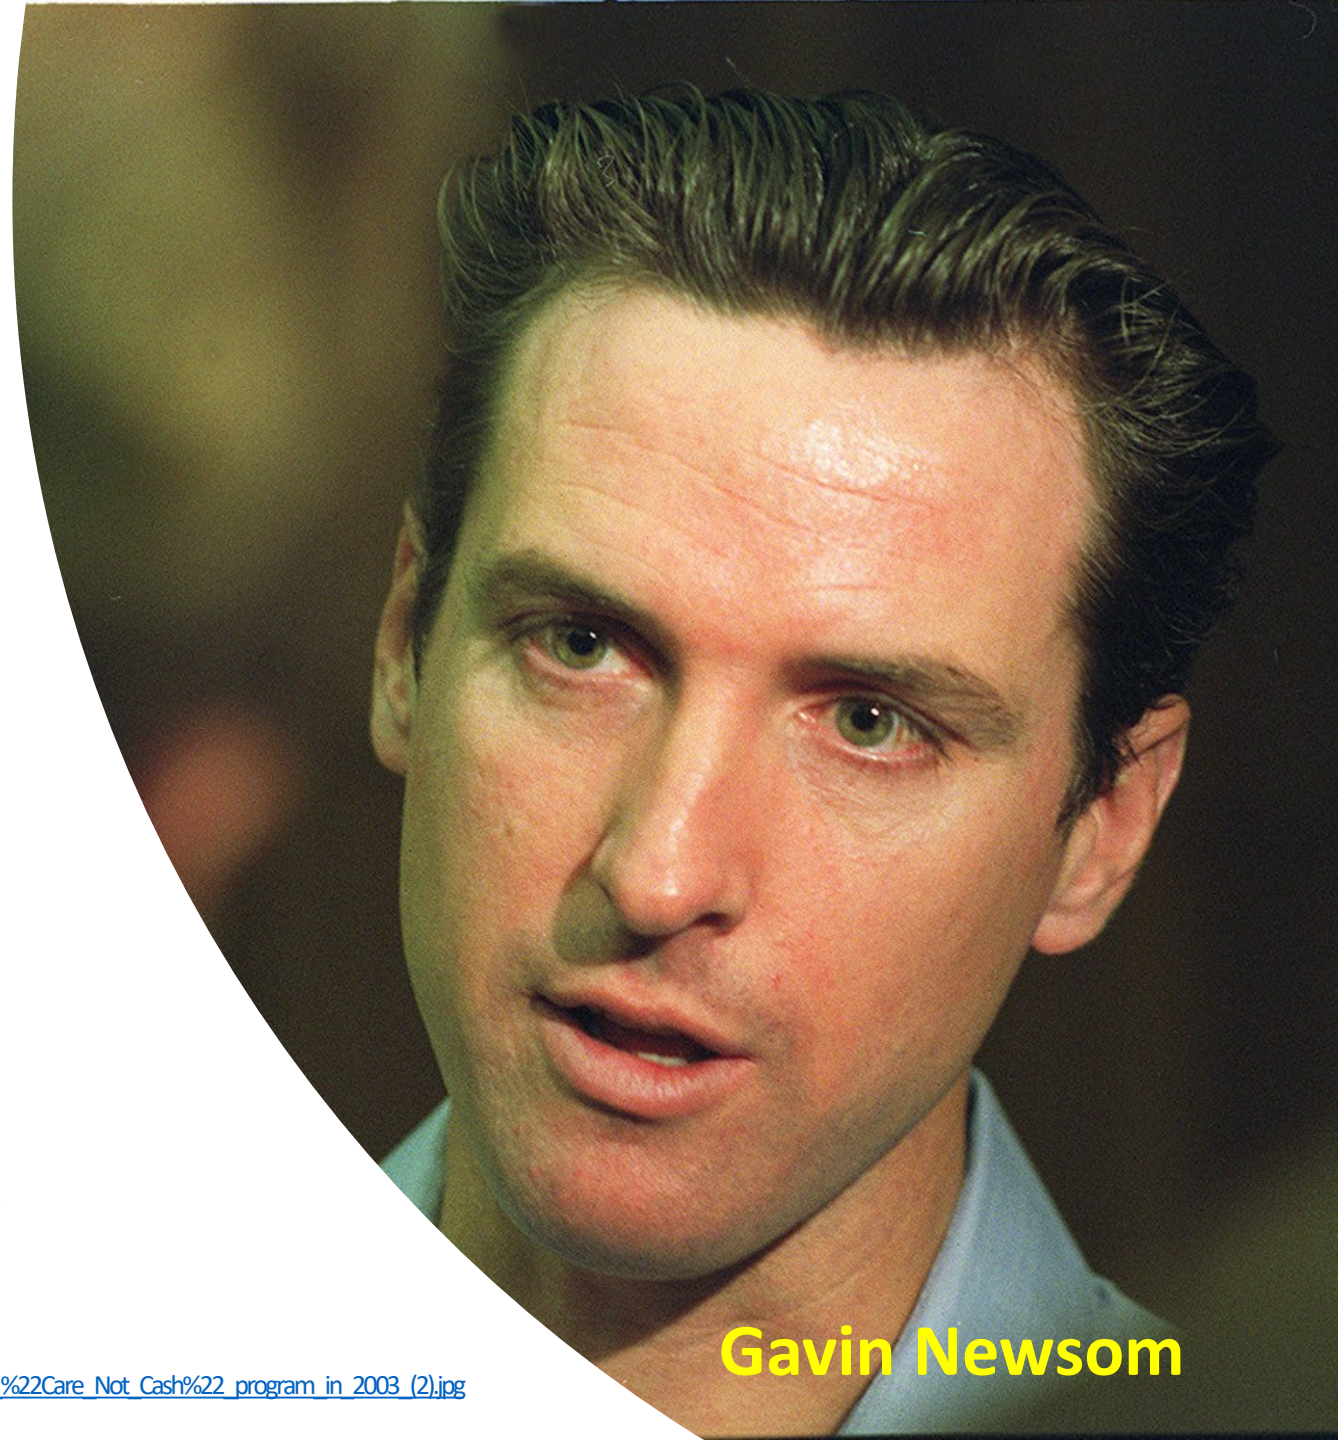

Yes, I did find homeless people

But I also found outstanding programs to take care of the homeless that should be the envy of any city

Proposition N

Care Not Cash

- Proposition N – Care Not Cash, is a program started by Gavin Newsom when he was a SF Supervisor, later Mayor and currently Lieutenant Governor of California and running for Governor in the Fall election.
- It is a program to provide housing, counselling, drug addiction treatment, mental health services and jobs to homeless people.
- It has moved thousands of homeless off the streets of SF
- However, it is so successful that thousands of homeless from across the US flock to SF to get into the program
- There is a well-established mechanism for compassionate care of homeless on the street until they can be moved into the program

Gavin Newsom

Here is how Care Not Cash Works

- Homeless are contacted on the street by volunteers who collect information and then arrange for them to be moved to initial housing in tents in designated areas of the city.
- The city provides toilets, water, cleaning services and security for the tent cities.
- As spots become available in Care Not Cash, the homeless are moved to hotels rooms provided by the city
- They then begin counselling, addiction services, mental health services and job training as appropriate.

The Graystone Hotel – One of the hotels that accommodate Care Not Cash participants

Tent Cities Located Under the Freeways

- As quickly as possible, homeless are moved off the street to tent cities maintained by the city.
- Homeless live in the tent cities until space is available in Care Not Cash.
- The program attracts homeless from all of the US and is successful in providing a new life for the participants.

Success of Care Not Cash is Clear

You can't argue with the numbers – Care Not Cash, since 2004, has been a true success story:

- Placed 3,540 homeless clients into permanent housing
- Reduced the number of individuals on General Assistance 85%, from 2,334 to 360
- Placed of 25-30 clients into housing each month
- Stopped using cash grants from the City to subsidize unhealthy and antisocial lifestyles amongst homeless individuals
- No new tax dollars were diverted to fund services

So Why are the so many homeless still on the streets of San Francisco?

Because no other communities in the US are doing for homeless what San Francisco is doing with Care Not Cash.

As a result, homeless from all over the US come to San Francisco.

Other communities need to take their share of the responsibility so that homeless do not need to stream to San Francisco to find a compassionate homeless policy.

As of 2013, the new East span holds a Guinness World Record for the World's Widest Bridge, boasting a width of 258.33 feet.
