

The GgetNip (갯잎) Forest

갯잎

Gwynns Falls Trail,
Baltimore, MD

I do not know the English Name

This plant, which is abundant both in Maryland and Korea, is a delicacy in Korea.

- The closest I can get to the Korean pronunciation is GgetNip. The GG sound is unique to Korean and the tN sound is nasal and not common in English.
- The leaf is used to wrap rice, vegetables and meat to create a bite-sized wrap or burrito-like delicacy.
- The seed and leaf can be dipped into a sweet-rice porridge, dried, and then fried in sesame seed oil for another delicacy.
- GgetNip has a strong pleasant fragrance and a savory and slightly spicy taste.

갯잎

This is GgetNip

Does anyone know its English name?

This is the GgetNip Forest

- This part of the Gwynns Falls Trail has about a quarter mile of GgetNip plants on both sides of the trail
- It is a beautiful and fragrant place.

Eunyoung Picking GgetNip Seed Pods

Smells Sooo Good

- After picking GgetNip, your hands smell so nice!
- Even the seed pods have a great fragrance.

GgetNip – From Trail to Table!