

Circa: 1772

DICKEYVILLE

A National Historic Site

Pictures along the Dickeyville Trail

- Approximately a two-mile walk one way (four miles round trip)
- Part of the trail is on an old highway, but most is on either forest bark or green grass

Dickeyville Trail

There are markers all along the way

A gravel path winds through a dense forest of tall trees with green foliage. The path is made of light-colored gravel and curves to the right. The trees are mostly deciduous with green leaves, and the ground is covered in a layer of fallen leaves and low-lying vegetation. The lighting is soft, suggesting an overcast day.

Dickeyville Trail

First part of trail is an old highway

Dickeyville Trail

A nearby tree warns: “No Dumping”

Dickeyville Trail

- At the end of the highway is the old Dickeyville Mill
- Across from the mill is the house of a supporter of Elizabeth Warren

Dickeyville Trail

After the Dickeyville Mill, the trail gets very nice

Dickeyville Trail

There are picnic tables and chairs

Dickeyville Trail

The trail is right along side the stream

Dickeyville Trail

- Then the trail becomes grass
- It opens up into a large park

Dickeyville Trail

Next to the park is a dam

Dickeyville Trail

After the park is a bamboo forest!

Dickeyville Trail

- The bamboo forest leads to the end of the trail
- Here you find a rustic cabin, picnic tables and a swing

